HONGKONG, SEPTEMBER 9TH, 1896.

At the meeting of the Legislative Council held on the 16th August the Hon. E. R. BELLIOS asked if it was the intention of the Government to invite competitive designs from local architects for the proposed new Government Offices, or if the Government proposed that the work carried out by the Public Works Department.

The Colonial Secretary replied that the answer to the former part of the question was no, and to the latter part yes. We have at the next meeting of Council Mr. BELLIOS and his unofficial colleagues will carry the matter a step further and bring forward a formal resolution that is the opinion of the Council is desirable that competitive designs should be invited. The public interest must be set before official susceptibilities. We fail to see, however, why official susceptibilities should be in any way hurt in the matter. It is the usual course in England, when a public building has to be erected, to invite competitive designs, and in every way to encourage public interest in the matter. The magnificent piles of municipal buildings which adorn most of the large towns of England are the result of the competitive system, and it is reasonable to suppose that if instead of inviting competition the municipalities had in every case confined the work to their own permanent officials the result would have been less satisfactory. It is in the nature of things that it should be so. Competition is not only the soul of business, but also the incentive to excellence in all departments of life.

It is in contemplation to erect new public offices in Hongkong. The project has not yet been formally approved by the Legislative Council, no vote has been taken for it, and it is not included in the Public Works programme attached to the 1895 Estimates. Practically, however, it has been understood that a site for a new Court-house and Post Office should be reserved on the Reclamation, though it was not understood the work was to be proceeded with at a very early date. On the 15th March, 1894, the Hon. T. H. WINTERBURN asked if the Government would procure and lay upon the table an estimate of what money the Post Office, Treasury, Court-house, Land Office, etc., would probably realise if expended on auction, and what would be the probable cost of erecting a suitable Post Office and Court-house, including a Land Office, etc., on Government ground on the new Reclamation. The Colonial Secretary made the following reply: "The Director of Public Works estimates the amount realisable at the present time by the sale of these premises, including Crosby's store, at about £230,000, and the cost of erecting suitable buildings on Government ground on the new Reclamation, exclusive of the value of that ground, which is very valuable, and not including a building to replace Crosby's store, at about £240,000. The estimate of the amount realisable is, of course, a matter of speculation, and the present time is not opportune for throwing a quantity of Government land on the market." Since that time it appears to have been determined to proceed with the work forthwith, and when Mr. BELLIOS asked his question on the 13th August as to whether local architects were to be invited to submit competitive designs plans had already been prepared in the Public Works Department. Why it should have been sought to throw any air of secrecy over the matter it is impossible to say, except that it is in accordance with Hongkong official tradition. It would have been in every respect better had the Colonial Secretary stated that the plans were already prepared and given a general outline of the Government's proposals in the matter.

The Governor, however, took a very wise step in inviting a committee to examine the plans prepared by the Public Works Department and report upon them. That report has now been sent in and is said to be adverse to the plans, on the ground, we understand, that the proposed building would be unworthy of the colony. Mr. COOPER seems to have studied utility and economy and to have taken as his model the present Government Offices, which, if not very handsome, are exceedingly comfortable for those who have to work in them, being in summer the coolest place in the colony with the exception of the ice-house. The committee, however, think that the new offices should not only answer requirements from a utilitarian point of view, but that they should also constitute an adornment to the colony. In that opinion they will be supported by the general body of ratepayers, and we trust the unofficial members of Council will not be slow to give effect to the public wish. It would be no slur on the Director of Public Works to adopt the same plan here as is followed in England and invite competitive designs. Outside Government work that plan is not at all innovation in Hongkong. The plans for the City Hall, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, the Jockey Club Grand Stand, and the new building in course of erection for the Hongkong Club were all decided upon after competition, and the system which has led to such satisfactory results in these cases would produce equally satisfactory results in the case of Government buildings. If the Director of Public Works produced a better design than any of the private architects it would of course be adopted, but to rule out private architects merely because the Director of Public Works thinks the possible adoption of plans prepared outside his office is inconsistent with his official dignity is to subordinate the public interest to private sentiment. We trust, therefore, that the unofficial members will bring forward a resolution in favour of inviting competitive designs, and that if the resolution is negatived by the official vote they will bring the matter before the Secretary of State and oppose any vote of funds for the proposed building until their views on this point are complied with.
